

Hello and I hope your Wednesday is going well!

I wanted to share this inspirational read with you today. Perhaps you've heard or read parts of Former President Obama's speech to graduates? It's encouraging for them and for all people, I believe.

As commencement speeches go, there is always a call to action. Obama's was no different, but his third point was poignant and encouraging for churches. He said - build a community. This is a challenge during pandemic times but crucial. Thankfully, we are already a community! We already have this community in place: we share values, a common purpose, common goals. We are already people who gather in community and follow Jesus and work for his purpose. Thanks be to God!

I hope you have a great rest of the day and I hope that you are staying cool and hydrated!
Blessings,
Jenni
